

WILDLIFE REHABILITATORS

Wisconsin DNR Hotline

Call the Wisconsin DNR Customer Service line at 1-888-936-7463 (available 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily) to find a licensed wildlife rehabilitator near you. On weekdays, you can also call the DNR Wildlife Switchboard directly at 608-267-0866.

Wildlife of Wisconsin

920-323-5609

wow@tm.net

Cato, WI

- Accepts all species

Stoney Ridge Wildlife Rehab

920-836-3734

stoneyridgewildlife@gmail.com

Oshkosh, WI

- Accepts rodents, rabbits, raccoons, and opossums

Angell Wildlife Rehabilitation

920-915-1084

thaus38@gmail.com

Oshkosh, WI

- Accepts turtles & adult bats

The Feather Wildlife Rehab Center

920-982-6578

feather7@charter.net

New London, WI

- Accepts raptors, eagles, and birds of prey

Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary

920-391-3685

Green Bay, WI

- Accepts all wildlife except raccoons

WHAT DO I DO WITH INJURED OR ABANDONED WILDLIFE?

Injured Wildlife

Contact your local wildlife rehabilitator. Please see attached list on back.

Abandoned Baby Wildlife

A young animal's best chance of survival is to be raised by its natural mother. It is important to make every effort to try to return the young to its mother. Only after all efforts to reunite them have been exhausted, should the orphan be removed from the wild.

Signs That A Wild Animal May Need Your Help:

- A bird is featherless or nearly featherless and is on the ground.
- There is a dead parent to the animal nearby.
- The animal is shivering.
- The animal is crying and wandering all day long.
- The animal shows sign of injury by an obvious broken limb or bleeding.

Humane Relocation of Wildlife:

NuisancePro: Nathan Seelow

920-470-3887, nathan@nuisancepro.com

- Specializing in bats, birds, and nuisance animal removal in Northeast Wisconsin
- Will also rescue injured waterfowl (wild duck, duckling, goose, or gosling) at no charge

Find More Wildlife Resources Online:

www.humanesociety.org/resources/found-orphaned-or-injured-baby-wild-animal

